Women have never been asked how they feel about sex. Researchers, looking for statistical "norms," have asked all the wrong questions for all the wrong reasons - and all too often wound up telling women how they should feel rather than asking them how they do feel. What these questionnaires have attempted to do is ask women themselves how they feel, what they like, and what they think of sex. This book presents what the women who answered said - in their own words and in their own way. In addition, this book presents a new theory of female sexuality.
